INSIDE THE CLASSROOM

- It was a winter wonderland in the Popcorn classroom as we continued our study of the four seasons. The dramatic play area was full of winter fun as the children got to decorate a large felt snowman, shovel snow with child-size snow shovels and throw fabric snowballs in a bucket!
- We learned how to tell the difference between heavy and light and about opposites.
- We finished activities in our Number 7 books! The children worked through various pages learning how to form and finger trace the number and also count different objects to strengthen their one-to-one correspondence of the number. The booklet was sent home in your child's back pack with several more pages and activities that you can do together at home to reinforce their number knowledge and skills!
- Our classroom puppets talked to the children about fair ways to play. We learned that there are times when we want the same thing or to do the same thing as someone else. We used the Second Step posters in the classroom to help us remember that we can share, take turns and even trade with a friend.

Home Connection:

See this week's Second Step Home Link 19 Fair Ways to Play attached to our email.

Ask your child if they remember the different options they have to play fairly and if they used any of the options during play at school or at home.
